

PRISONER OF THE TRUCK

FRED W. SARKIS

Prisoner of the Truck

11 Evergreen Street in Rochester, New York
We lived in the left half of the house.

Fruit and Vegetable Truck

Prisoner of the Truck

The Winterized Truck

The driver's section was separated from the back of the truck, and small swinging door gave access to the produce.

Prisoner of the Truck

For authenticity, Fred's grandson, Zach, posed for the artist who drew the cover of the Yes Pa.

Prisoner of the Truck

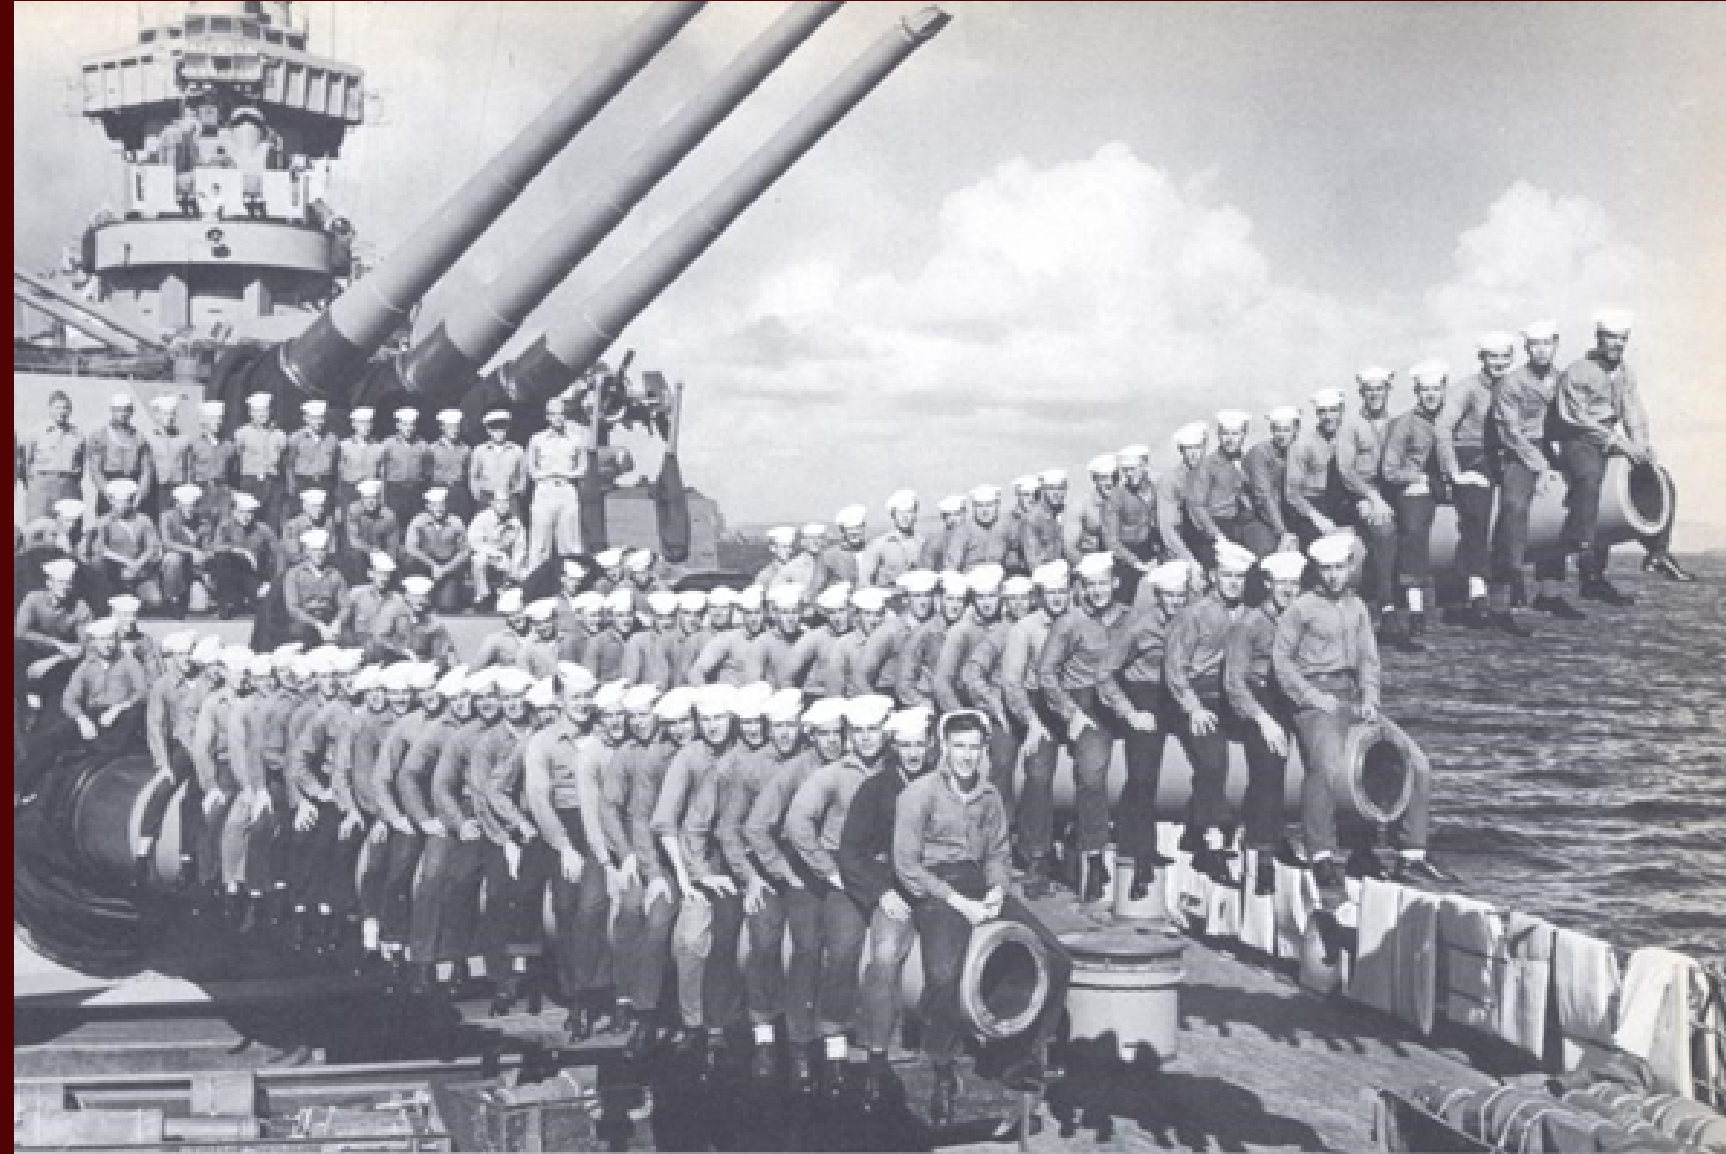

Fred's 8th grade graduation from St. Joseph's
Grammar School in 1940.

Fred, his sister, Betty, baby brother, Ken, and the bike that took Fred to and from school.

Prisoner of the Truck

USS Guam, United States Navy battle cruiser when Fred was in the Navy.

Joe, Fred, Anne

Mom, Dad,

Kenny

Deanna, Jim, Vicky

Betty was at her WWII job.

Fred's Brother, Joe.
Joe was 8 years old, when he sold strawberries with Fred.

Prisoner of the Truck

One of our first Kwik Kafe service vehicles.
Introduced coffee vending machines to big business

Kodak – one of the Kwik Kafe locations

The Kwik Kafe National Award-Winning Team 3 Sisters and 2 Brothers in the photo -- a brother on each end– Fred in the middle, back row.

Prisoner of the Truck

The Kwik Kafe Company expands its service into employee cafeterias throughout Rochester.
This was taken at the Rochester Telephone Company.

One of Fred's business: Today' Bristol Mountain
– Ski Resort in Canandaigua, New York.
A salute to Dan Fuller – new owner

A winter photo from Fred's condominium at Bristol Harbour Village on Canandaigua Lake, New York.

Fred's wife, Helen, their children and spouses, their grandchildren Canandaigua Lake, New York
At Bristol Harbour Village.

2006

Fred Sarkis:

- 94 years-young
- tennis-player
- World War II veteran
- shares the lessons that transformed his life when he was a poor child with a bad attitude, who was bullied because he was different than his peers
- dedicates his time to helping young people be all that they can be